ÚSELO Y TÍRELO ,

Uselo y tirelo Eduardo Galeano, 2023-09-26 El colapso ecológico -y el discurso que insiste con la catástrofe planetaria- se han vuelto parte de nuestro sentido común. En esta antología, Eduardo Galeano propone una mirada alternativa, que es en realidad una constante en toda su obra, para acercarnos al mismo problema: nos recuerda nuestro vínculo insoslayable con la naturaleza, explora su riqueza y sus formas de resistencia, y hasta señala con alarma nuestra tenacidad urbana y moderna de creer que podemos prescindir de ella. En estas páginas, Galeano imagina un Juicio Final para los seres humanos, en el que un alto tribunal de bichos y plantas nos acusará de haber convertido el reino de este mundo en un desierto de piedra. No es tarde, dice también, para entender de una vez que nuestro planeta es nuestra única casa. Muy recientemente nos hemos enterado de que la naturaleza se cansa, como nosotros, sus hijos; y hemos sabido que, como nosotros, puede morir asesinada. La civilización que confunde los relojes con el tiempo, el crecimiento con el desarrollo y lo grandote con la grandeza también confunde la naturaleza con el paisaje, mientras el mundo, laberinto sin centro, se dedica a romper su propio cielo (Eduardo Galeano).

Ibero-American Ecocriticism J. Manuel Gómez, 2024-02-19 Ibero-American Ecocriticism: Cultural and Social Explorations presents a distinct view of the diverse social and physical geographies of the Americas, their political and cultural connections to the Iberian Peninsula, and their relationship to the environment in its diverse representations. The topics ranging from myths and legends, poetics, young adult literature, arts and performance, to cinematography by women dialogue across chapters reveal a persistent usage of nature and environment as recurrent themes. Through visual and plastic arts, as well as poetic narratives of social utopias/dystopias, the contributors provide original readings on the effects of societal views and struggles to protect and consciously exploit the natural world. The uniqueness of this book relies therefore on the geographical and cultural approach to the poetics of nature and its metaphorical and physical embodiment, place and geography through utopian and dystopian world recreation and representation, and finally the nexus with ecology and social actors.

Ecological Crisis and Cultural Representation in Latin America Mark Anderson, Zélia M. Bora, 2016-10-04 Worldwide environmental crisis has become increasingly visible over the last few decades as the full scope of anthropogenic climate change manifests itself and large-scale natural resource extraction has expanded into formerly remote areas that seemed beyond the reach of industrialization. Scientists and popular culture alike have turned to the term Anthropocene to capture the global scale of environmental and even geological transformations that humans have carried out over the last two centuries. The chapters in Ecological Crisis and Cultural Representation in Latin America examine the dynamics and interplay between local cultures and the expansion of global capitalism in Latin America, emphasizing the role of art in bearing witness to and generating awareness of environmental and social crises, but also its possibilities for formulating solutions. They take particular care to draw out the ways in which local environmental crises in Latin American nations are witnessed and imagined as part of a global system, focusing on the problems of time, scale, and complexity as key terms in conceiving the dimensions of crisis. At the same time, they question the notion of the Anthropocene as a species-wide human historical project, making visible the coloniality of natural resource extraction in Latin America and its dire effects for local people, cultures, and environments. Taking an ecocritical approach to Latin American cultural production including literature, film, performance, and digital artwork, the chapters in this volume develop a notion of ecological crisis that captures not only its documentary sense in the representation of environmental destruction (the degradation of the oikos), but also the crisis in the modern worldview (logos) that the acknowledgment of crisis provokes. In this sense, crisis is also the promise of a turning point, of the possibilities for change. Latin American representations of ecological crisis thus create the conditions for projects that decolonize environments, developing new, sustainable ways of conceiving of and relating to our world or returning to old ones.

Most entries are of 1500 words but the encyclopedia also includes survey articles of up to 10,000 words on the literature of individual countries, of the colonial period, and of ethnic minorities, including the Hispanic communities in the United States. Besides presenting and illuminating the traditional canon, the encyclopedia also stresses the contribution made by women authors and by contemporary writers. A Fragmented Continent Guy Edwards, J. Timmons Roberts, 2015-11-20 How Latin American countries became leading voices and innovators on addressing climate change—and what threatens their leadership. Latin American countries have increased their influence at the United Nations climate change negotiations and offered potential solutions on coping with global warming. But in the face of competing priorities, sometimes these climate policies are jettisoned, undermined, or simply ignored. A Fragmented Continent focuses on Latin America's three major blocs at the U.N. climate negotiations and how they attempt to balance climate action with building prosperity. Brazil has reduced its deforestation but continues its drive for economic growth and global recognition. A leftist group led by Venezuela, Bolivia, and Ecuador decries the injustice of climate change but is highly dependent on the export of fossil fuels. A new group, including Chile, Costa Rica, and Peru and supported by Mexico, offers sharp reductions in their carbon emissions in return for greater action by others; these countries now have to deliver on their promises. Weaving together issues of politics and economy, trade, foreign policy, civil society, and environmental protection, A Fragmented Continent offers a long-missing perspective on one of this century's greatest challenges and neglected regions.

La naturaleza sí tiene derechos Alberto Acosta, Enrique Viale, 2024-08-27 ¿Por qué aceptamos como normal que las corporaciones tengan derechos y puedan reclamar por ellos mientras nos resulta inconcebible que la naturaleza, de la que depende nuestra vida, goce de ese reconocimiento? Dado que superar este desatino es uno de los grandes retos de la humanidad para enfrentar el colapso ecológico y social, Alberto Acosta y Enrique Viale, referentes internacionales del pensamiento y las luchas ecologistas, cuentan qué significan los derechos de la naturaleza y por qué el tema está muy lejos de ser una formalidad jurídica o una simple novelería. En este texto introductorio e inspirador, bucean en las razones históricas que, desde la conquista de América e incluso antes, explican el lugar de la naturaleza como proveedora pasiva de insumos y depósito de desechos, al servicio del crecimiento infinito en un planeta finito. Y ponen el foco en las falsas soluciones, como el desarrollo sostenible o el capitalismo verde, estrategias cosméticas que prometen respetar las normas ambientales mientras alientan la explotación extractivista de la tierra, los minerales, el agua, o formas más innovadoras de mercantilización. Recuperando las voces críticas de filósofos, economistas, referentes de pueblos originarios y juristas, y el balance de experiencias pioneras en el reconocimiento de la naturaleza como sujeto de derechos, Acosta y Viale plantean que no se trata de volver a prácticas premodernas, mitificar el pasado o condenar los avances científicos. Tampoco de inventar todo de cero, porque hay un acervo de luchas y cosmovisiones comunitarias con mucho para enseñarnos. Sin erigirse en defensores de una naturaleza intocada, los autores invitan a entender el valor intrínseco de la naturaleza y la necesidad de restaurar sus ciclos vitales, su diversidad y sus ecosistemas. Y apuestan a trabajar en pos de un giro civilizatorio que anteponga, al mandato economicista del productivismo a cualquier costo, la solidaridad, la justicia social y lazos de armonía entre todas las formas de vida.

Visualizing Loss in Latin America Gisela Heffes, 2023-05-19 Visualizing Loss in Latin America engages with a varied corpus of textual, visual, and cultural material with specific intersections with the natural world, arguing that Latin American literary and cultural production goes beyond ecocriticism as a theoretical framework of analysis. Gisela Heffes poses the following crucial question: How do we construct a conceptual theoretical apparatus to address issues of value, meaning, tradition, perspective, and language, that contributes substantially to environmental thinking, and that is part and parcel of Latin America? The book draws attention to ecological inequality and establishes a biopolitical, ethics-based reading of Latin American art, film, and literature that operates at the intersection of the built environment and urban settings. Heffes suggests that the aesthetic praxis that emerges in/from Latin America is permeated with a rhetoric of waste—a significant trait that overwhelmingly defines it.

Foreign Language Teaching and the Environment Charlotte Ann Melin, 2019-10-01 At a time when environmental humanities and sustainability studies are creating new opportunities for curricular innovation, this volume examines factors key to successful implementation of cross-curricular initiatives in language programs. Contributors discuss theoretical issues pertinent to combining sustainability studies with foreign languages, describe curricular models transferable to a range of instructional contexts, and introduce program structures supportive of teaching cultures and languages across the curriculum. Exploring the intersection of ecocritical theory, second language acquisition research, and disciplinary fields, these essays demonstrate ways in which progressive language departments are being reconceived as relevant and viable programs of cross-disciplinary studies. They provide an introduction to teaching sustainability and environmental humanities topics in language, literature, and culture courses as well as a wide range of resources for teachers and diverse stakeholders in areas related to foreign language education.

Handbook of Ecocriticism and Cultural Ecology Hubert Zapf, 2016-05-10 Ecocriticism has emerged as one of the most fascinating and rapidly growing fields of recent literary and cultural studies. From its regional origins in late-twentieth-century Anglo-American academia, it has become a worldwide phenomenon, which involves a decidedly transdisciplinary and transnational paradigm that promises to return a new sense of relevance to research and teaching in the humanities. A distinctive feature of the present handbook in comparison with other survey volumes is the combination of ecocriticism with cultural ecology, reflecting an emphasis on the cultural transformation of ecological processes and on the crucial role of literature, art, and other forms of cultural creativity for the evolution of societies towards sustainable futures. In state-of-the-art contributions by leading international scholars in the field, this handbook maps some of the most important developments in contemporary ecocritical thought. It introduces key theoretical concepts, issues, and directions of ecocriticism and cultural ecology and demonstrates their relevance for the analysis of texts and other cultural phenomena.

Landscape Planning Murat Ozyavuz, 2012-06-13 Landscape architecture is the design of outdoor and public spaces to achieve environmental, socio-behavioral, and/or aesthetic outcomes. It involves the systematic investigation of existing social, ecological, and geological conditions and processes in the landscape, and the design of interventions that will produce the desired outcome. The scope of the profession includes: urban design; site planning; town or urban planning; environmental restoration; parks and recreation planning; visual resource management; green infrastructure planning and provision; and private estate and residence landscape master planning and design - all at varying scales of design, planning and management. This book contains chapters on recent developments in studies of landscape architecture. For this reason I believe the book would be useful to the relevant professional disciplines.

Freshwaters and Wetlands of Patagonia Gabriela Mataloni,Rubén D. Quintana,2022-09-29 The Freshwaters of Patagonia adopts a socioecological approach, in which experts from across Patagonia review recent, scientifically rigorous literature and data of their own, thus synthesizing the current knowledge directly relevant to understand the present state and future trends of icefields, freshwater and wetland ecosystems in this region. The book's organization into three parts provides a studied and comprehensive view on the patterns and processes of the various ecosystems in Patagonia, and describes the sociological aspects of freshwater ecosystems, as well as characterizes the conservation of the freshwater and wetland ecosystems, in Patagonia. The chapters offer a broad, state-of-the-art overview of the current status of glaciers, freshwater and wetland ecosystems of this region, as well as studies of both local and large scale biodiversity patterns, and study cases of extreme and naturally polluted environments. The volume concludes with the current status of Patagonian freshwaters, and discusses the scientific, legal and administrative tools aimed at their sustainable management within the framework of the UNEP Sustainable Development Goals 2030 Agenda. A broad audience of students, scientists, engineers, environmental managers, and policy makers will be interested in this volume.

Ecofictions, Ecorealities, and Slow Violence in Latin America and the Latinx World Ilka Kressner,Ana María Mutis,Elizabeth Pettinaroli,2019-11-21 Ecofictions, Ecorealities and Slow Violence in Latin America and the Latinx World brings together critical studies of Latin American and Latinx writing, film, visual, and performing arts to offer new perspectives on ecological violence. Building on Rob Nixon's concept of slow violence, the contributions to the volume explore processes of environmental destruction that are not immediately visible yet expand in time and space and transcend the limits of our experience. Authors consider these forms of destruction in relation to new material contexts of artistic creation, practices of activism, and cultural production in Latin American and Latinx worlds. Their critical contributions investigate how writers, cultural activists, filmmakers, and visual and performance artists across the region conceptualize, visualize, and document this invisible but far-reaching realm of violence that so tenaciously resists representation. The volume highlights the dense web of material relations in which all is enmeshed, and calls attention to a notion of agency that transcends the anthropocentric, engaging a cognition envisioned as embodied, collective, and relational. Ecofictions, Ecorealities and Slow Violence measures the breadth of creative imaginings and critical strategies from Latin America and Latinx contexts to enrich contemporary ecocritical studies in an era of heightened environmental vulnerability.
